PENSIERO DOMENICALE - LA DIGNITA' DELLA DONNA

Tra i temi molto scomodi di cui parlano e discutono i mezzi di comunicazione si trova la situazione dove le donne non vengono trattate al livello degli uomini. Nonostante i progressi, anche in Australia c'e' ancora tanto da fare. Purtroppo, ai tempi di Gesu', le donne non avevano nessun diritto, infatti erano considerate come proprieta' del padre, del marito, del fratello e anche del figlio. Quajndo Gesu' decide di guarire la donna e di ridare la vita alla fanciulla, egli condanna severamente qualsiasi legge discriminatoria. Siamo tutti figli di Dio, femmine e maschi.

JESUS' ABOUNDING LOVE

Australia has made a good deal of progress in its endeavour to treat women with equal rights, although it has some way to go. Saudi Arabia has granted its women the right to drive a car. Sadly, in some countries patriarchy is still alive and well. When it comes to living in a country which treats its women as second class citizens, we could spare a thought for Jesus. Women in his country were treated as less than second class citizen, they had no status. They were the property of their fathers, husbands, brothers and sons. It is obvious that Jesus had no intention of living by these sexist laws. Just as earlier he had cured a man 'possessed by an evil spirit,' so he had no hesitation in ministering to two women in need. Clearly they were both children of a loving God.

The older woman had been suffering from a blood disease, quite possibly of a gynecological nature. As such she was impure, and she knew very well that by touching a man, and especially a Teacher, she would have incurred the wrath of the law. But Jesus did not respond in a punitive manner, Here was a person in need; the fact that she was a woman, and he would be defiled by her touch, made no difference. "Your faith has saved you" he said.

On reaching the house of Jairus, Jesus asked to see his daughter. He entered her room accompanied by her father and the three apostles. Contrary to the dictates of the law which forbids contact of a male with a girl of a marriageable age, Jesus took her hand, "Little girl," he said, "I tell you to get up." The laws of a country and, equally the laws of the Church are deemed to be just, they are there for the good of its people, women and men alike.
