30th Sunday in Ordinary Time, Year A
Our High Calling of Love

Loving God above all things means there are many glorious and positive things we are called to. Here are a few of the high callings we receive from this Commandment.

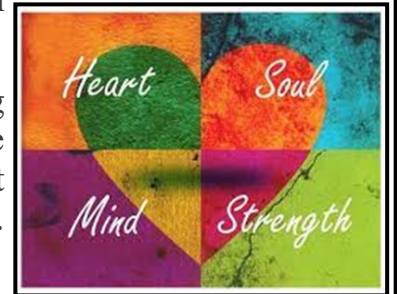

Adoration: To adore God is one of our highest callings. Surprisingly, it means we first recognize our nothingness before God. Yes, that’s right, nothingness! This is the heart and soul of humility. We are weak, and, without God, we are nothing. Our pride can make this hard to admit. But when we can recognize this, adoration then enables us to offer all glory to God rather than ourselves. Love God by adoring him.

Prayer: We are called to “pray always.” By making God the centre of our lives, we choose also to make prayer the centre of our lives. Prayer is the active way in which we unite ourselves to God, making Him the centre of our lives. Love God by praying to him.

Sacrifice: At the heart of love is sacrifice. Sacrifice, on a secular can be superficial. But on a spiritual level of faith, sacrifice can become one of our greatest joys. Sacrifice is at the heart of the love of Jesus in which He willingly gave His life on the Cross for us. Sacrifice, on our part, must not be seen in a negative light. Express our love for God by our sacrifices.

Promises and Vows: There are various times when we are called to show honour and respect to God through solemn promises and vows. These public commitments to God are made in the various Sacraments such as Baptism, Confirmation, Marriage and Holy Orders. Making a promise or vow to God and then fulfilling them is yet another excellent way of loving God.

Loving others: Loving one another is part and parcel of loving God. While God is to be loved directly, it is also necessary that we love him by loving all his children. That means that we cannot hate one another and at the same time suppose that we love God. Love God by loving and serving our fellow human beings.
